DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 7-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 9 and all dependent claims recite limitations comprising only logic. Since "logic" does not comprise any physical element, the use of the terminology, "A system" appears to be misdescriptive.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC §101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 7-12, as best understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The claims recite merely logic that is not embodied on a computer readable medium.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shavit et al. '156 in view of Salvo et al. '271.

Shavit et al. '156 disclose or inherently teach the limitations of the claims including: a supply chain management framework utilizing a network-based interface for receiving data related to the sale of goods and generating/sending electronic order forms (See, for example, Col. 6).

Shavit et al. lack the specific teaching of comparing electronic order forms for monitoring reliance and gauging performance of distributors.

Salvo et al. teach a similar supply chain management system whereby data related to distribution of goods (i.e., inventory data) is monitored (See Col. 3, lines 41-62 for example); electronic orders forms are made for replenishing used/sold inventory with vendors/suppliers; and the electronic orders are monitored/compared for each vendor to gauge the reliance/performance of the vendors (See for example, Salvo et al., Col. 10 line 62 – Col. 11, lines 36).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Shavit et al. to compare electronic order forms for monitoring reliance and gauging performance of the distributors, in view of Salvo et al., in order to “increase productivity and quality” (See Salvo et al., Col. 11, line 15).

Relevant Prior Art

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Further, the assignee, Restaurant Services Inc. (RSI), launched a product (RSI/Link) "to collect sales, shipment, pricing, and inventory information from Burger King's 350 suppliers and distributors" (See "A Whopping Inventory Task") in 1994. The article "Burger King Orders AT&T Mail Service" discusses how "the E-mail network will replace a manual, paper-based tracking and ordering system."

The Examiner requests that the applicant provide the Office with any known information relevant to the above mentioned product launch.
